Interview Skills (1-day)

Getting the interview process right is key to hiring the right people and also getting hired. This high impact course shows you both aspects – one from the side of the interviewer and the other side, being the interviewee. It will showcase the do's and don'ts for each person and how we can ensure that there is a right fit for the role.

Getting it wrong can cause thousands as well as wasting your precious time and effort. Plus, most organisations find that the interviewee can say all the right things and come across really well in an interview, but as soon as they start work, they are showing a different character and persona that doesn't fit with the culture of the organisation or the role in which they were hired for. This course helps you to avoid these mistakes.

By the end of this highly interactive course, you will be able to:

- Remove the myths surrounding interviews
- Avoid having poor interviews
- Create a true impression
- Think proactively and experiment using the right powerful questions and having appropriate answers for them
- Take a different approach to your conventional way of conducting interviews
- Ensure that you have the right candidate for the job and really test their personalities, skillsets and experience
- Give the right and honest feedback

What others have said about these courses:

"If you want to save time and resources in getting it right first time, then come to ARIVU's training courses. You won't be disappointed. Highly effective and highly enjoyable!"
